Forecast For East Midlands
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Friday 24 Dec 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Murky and overcast today with periods of rain or drizzle.

Today:
Mostly cloudy on Friday with extensive low cloud and areas of rather persistent fog. Spells of intermittent, mainly light rain and drizzle are likely at times, these more frequent through the afternoon. Maximum temperature 8 deg C (46 deg F).

Tonight:
Becoming colder this evening. Rain may briefly turn to sleet or snow over the Peaks before easing. Fog, low cloud lifting and becoming mainly dry, though a chance of showers. Minimum temperature 1 deg C (34 deg F).

Saturday:
A cold and rather cloudy start to Christmas Day morning, but mainly dry. Bright or sunny periods developing for many parts, but feeling quite cold with a noticeable easterly breeze. Maximum temperature 5 deg C (41 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Dull and damp on Boxing Day with a spell of rain. Generally cloudy Monday and Tuesday with a chance of rain. Winds often light and turning less cold.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.